SLATTERY'S DERRICK.

It Was Ready for Use When There Was a Chance to Secure Funds.

MONEY MADE HIS MARE GO.

That Million-Dollar Park Fund Was a Bonanza for Politicians.

AND THEY WERE IN EVIDENCE.

Roll Shows Many Peculiar Features to Be Explained.

Mr. John Slattery, contractor, &c. ppears to have been especially favored y the Park Board in work under the dollar appropriation. If there was a derrick to be rented John Slat-tery was sent for If a horse was ed it was Slattery's animal that was trotted out, and when pay-day came it was Slattery who drew from the sasury of the million.

In one of the items of work, known as mprovement of Manhattan Square walks and drainage, Mr. Slattery's name appears, under date of July 18, as "John Slattery, use of horse,

The requisition for a horse, drum and man to work the same, was signed by A. B. Tappen, Park Commissioner. In it he calls for the man and the horse for time not exceeding fifty days, at a cost of not more than is a day. Mr. Slattery played to the limit and put in the full number of days at the top price, have been more than paid for out of the appropriation.

Mr. Tappen has made it a point to say from time to time that the Park Board was acting under the greatest difficulties in trying to give men employment.

"We wanted," he said to an "Evening World" reporter not long ago, "we wanted to put as many deserving men at work as possible, and we did everything necessary to provide for them.

That was why, probably, he signed the numerous requisitions for Slattery's services. But it doesn't seem as if he or very many other members of the Board made an effort to give the unemployed a chance. There have been several communications on this subject received by "The Evening World," and the gentiemen of the Park Board may have some interesting facts to read The fact that work tickets were optaly peddied and sold has already become notorious. It is well known that deserving men who should have had the work did not get it simply because they lacked the required influence or the money to buy a chance to perform honest labor at decent wages.

Here is the twelfth instalment of figures they lacked the required influence or the money to buy a chance to perform honest labor at decent wages.

Lawyer Kaan Declares He Will Again Prefer Charges.

Lawyer Aaron L. Kahn bustled abou the Hariem Police Court this morning in search of Court Officer Levy. Kahn had preferred charges against Levy for conduct unbecoming an officer. These charges were dismissed by In-spector Conlin last week, and Justice Taintor, before whom Levy was summoned, last Saturday, denied that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a complaint.

Kahn alleges that Levy steered clients away from him, advising them to employ other counsel. He cites the case of Bridget C. Dilion, wherein he lost a $250 fee. Kahn declares he will go before Inspector Conlin again.
